Seattle Apartment Living

Are you currently shopping for an apartment and have no idea where to start? Did you know that you can find a cheap apartment using the Craigslist website. This free classifieds website allows people to search for apartments and sub-leases in specific locations based on price, location and other criteria. Many people overlook looking online when shopping for an seattle apartments. However, this is a huge mistake because there are many choices for apartments that can be found online. There are many times where seattle apartments guide books will only list places for rent by companies that pay a fee to be listed in their book. This means that there might be an apartment online that is available and that meets, or exceeds, the criteria you are looking for.

The first step to search for an seattle apartments on Craigslist is to click on the specific city that you live in. Let's say you live in Seattle, Washington. All you need to do is click the "cities" listings and then click on "Seattle". Once you have opened up the Seattle Craigslist section, make sure to click on the "apartments" click which is located in the housing section. There are two ways to search for accommodations. The first way is by browsing through each page and viewing the complexes that you want to visit. This tactic is good for people who want to view recent listing as all the posts are listed by the newest posts first. However, if you do not want to browse through the listings page by page, all you need to do is type in your criteria into the search box and click search. Let's say you want to find a house in Capital Hill. Simply type in "Capital Hill" into the search box and your query will show all the apartments that are listed within this area of Seattle.

If you are planning a move to the Pacific Northwest, Craigslist Seattle can help you to solve the problem of where to live. Whether you want to rent an apartment, find a room in shared housing or purchase your own home, Craigslist offers many options that will help you to find the best home for your situation.

Persons that work in downtown Seattle may want to find an apartment near the Space Needle or along the waterfront. You may find a place near Pikes Place market that allows you to purchase fresh vegetables and seafood on your walk from the office. Commutes from the Seattle Center to offices downtown are easy with the monorail providing a five minute commute. Seattle also offers a very extensive bus service that serves many of the suburbs and there are several park and rides that will get you downtown quickly. Also remember that the ferry system allows commuters to live on the Bainbridge Island or the Kitsap Peninsula and commute directly by ferry to downtown.

If you are needing to purchase a home, Craigslist houses for sale is a great resource. In this listing you will find ads that are entered by both individuals as well as agents trying to sell homes. Many of the homes listed will also include photos or video tours of the property. These photos and videos can save a lot of driving time as you weed out the homes you are not interested in purchasing.

The commute in Seattle can be difficult, especially when traveling on the interstates. I-405, I-5 and I-90 can all back up substantially and move very slowly, so before you make a decision on a home that is some distance from your work or other activities, you may want to try the drive during your normal commuting time. On a Friday night at rush hour, it can take a couple of hours to get from Everett to Tacoma traveling on I-5. Make sure that you use the area break downs to find a home in the area you plan to spend most of your time.
